Finally a haze variety that can finish in October outdoors, or in 9 weeks indoors. A beautiful Haze mother which we've grown very fond of was crossed with a Oaxacan male. Fast Haze has an aftertaste that is sure to satisfy as it lingers on the palate for several hours. The high is strong and soaring lifting the spirit, motivating and reminding you to keep moving onwards and upwards. Great creative weed with much less paranoia than Haze smokers are accustomed to. Notes:

Outdoor finishing times are for 50 degrees latitude for seeds that are started in May or earlier. They should be fairly accurate for most of the states.

Variation, Odor Level, Mold Resistance, Yield, Ease of Growth and Feed Level are rated on a scale of 1 to 6. 1 is the lowest and 6 is the highest. For example an Odor Level of 6 would be very stinky. A strain with a Variation rating of 1 would be very uniform. A strain with a Mold Resistance rating of 6 would be nearly mold proof. A strain with an Ease of Growth rating of 6 would be ideal for beginners. A strain with a feed level of 6 would be a heavy feeder. A strain with a Yield rating of 6 would be a heavy yielder.

Stretch is the amount the plant will stretch when put into 12/12 hours (flowering) indoors. A plant that has a 2x rating will stretch to twice it's height in the first 3 weeks of 12/12, ie an 18 inch plant rated at 2x will stretch to about 36 inches. These numbers are for properly lit gardens, if they don't get enough light they will stretch more.

Sativa/Indica is the ratio of Sativa to Indica. A 60/40 Sativa/Indica will be roughly 60% Sativa and 40% Indica.

Q: I am new to this. Where can I find info about growing?

A: Please visit our forums for information on Indoor Growing and Outdoor Growing. See the Links page for other good sources of information.

Q: How do you recommend I germinate my seeds?

A: We recommend using good bottled water (filtered or spring) with a mineral content of no more than 150ppm. The pH of the water should be between 5.6 and 6.5, and ideally 6.2.

Soak the seeds in labelled cups of water overnight or for 12 hours somewhere warm and dark, ideally 70-80 degrees F, do not go over 85 degrees F. Above a water heater is usually a good spot. The seeds will sink when they have absorbed water.

This is the beginning of their life. At this point you can transfer the seeds to moist paper towel sandwiches.

To do this fold a paper towel once in half, place the seeds on one half of the paper towel and fold in half again. Lift the paper towel to let the excess water drip out and place the paper towel flat into a sandwich size ziplock baggie. Puff the baggie up with a bit of air and zip it shut.

Place the ziplock in a warm and dark place, again 70-80 degrees F. Change the papertowels and ziplock baggies at least once a day, ideally twice a day.

Transplant the seeds into a disease free medium when the length of the root that emerges is one to two times the length of the seed. Place the seeds just a few inches under fluorescents and monitor carefully to make sure they don't dry out. Seeds can also be started under metal halide lights (75w to 1000w) and should be at least 3 feet away from HID (High Intensity Discharge) bulbs initially.

If you are using fluorescents the seedlings can get very close to the bulbs, in fact they will be stronger plants if they are allowed to get really close to the fluorescents, but try not to let them touch the fluorescents for too long.

Do not let the seeds dry out at any stage of this process.
